

The soul of Son Amar accentuates the grace of Mallorca

By Eugene Darville

“Try to keep your soul young and quivering right up to old age, and to imagine right up to the brink of death that life is only beginning. I think that is the only way to keep adding to one’s talent, to one’s affections, and one’s inner happiness.” - George Sand

The beautiful rustic finca of Son Amar that nestles between thousands of olive and fruit trees, is as mystical as the mountains crowning Mallorca in the horizon. An amazing symphony of colors, emblematic design of nature, and human respect.

Entering the Son Amar area leaves you with no idea of what awaits you inside. The mystique around this place stays intact, right until the show starts.

At a glance, you see all the people gathered in the impressive “La Tafona” hall framed by pure authenticity, mingling and glittering with excitement. It’s like everyone talks about it, yet nobody knows what it is.

It has been stated and proclaimed several times before, that some of the main ingredients of Son Amar are passion, authenticity and cultural diversity. Indeed, I had to agree, after 4 hours of mind-blowing performances, I was conquered.

Accompanied by the tunes of Son Amar’s famous violinist and band, the chef’s tapas, almond soup and stuffed aborigines with pork loin steaks, made a great foundation for the entire evening in the name of Mallorca.

Sitting just 5 feet from the enormous scene, I experienced close-up, how more than 50 very talented and passionate artists took me on an exhilarating journey of visual mind tricks, captivating dance acts, and musical compositions.

Even today, days after the show, I wonder just how it is possible for a crew of more than 100 people to repeatedly maintain such passion and professionalism. Every single crewmember at Son Amar deserves a great kudos for their effort.

Another thing that truly amazed me was to see how elder and young people from the audience broke into dance together during the break and after the show, to the rhythms of the Son Amar orchestra, and voices of gorgeous Rosa de Lima and Arthur Hensen. They literally had people jumping, making every soul vanish into the sound of happiness.

Just like the changing landscapes and eternal youth of Mallorca, even though you visit the exact same place several times, there’s always something new to see, and something new that makes you curious.

Therefore, I invite you to come and stay forever young and quivering at Son Amar with it’s many joyful souls.
